

AN ACADEMIC APPROACH TO ADDRESSING GAPS IN CARE

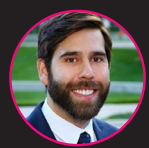

Why is academia going more global, and what do outreach opportunities look like?

WITH ZEB A. SYED, MD; BRENTON D. FINKLEA, MD; AND JOHN C. ANHALT, MD

eyetube.net/series/breakfast-with-wills-eye/academic-global-ophthalmology

Zeba A. Syed, MD, invites Brenton D. Finklea, MD, and John C. Anhalt, MD, to shed light on subspecialty care in global ophthalmology, including ways in which physicians can get involved at home and abroad. They also discuss the growth of global ophthalmology fellowships across the country.

Cristos Ifantides, MD, summarized his experience with the Wills Eye Academic Global Ophthalmology Fellowship and comments on the impact young ophthalmologists can have on the fight against global blindness. Watch here: bit.ly/MEglobal

JOHN C. ANHALT, MD

- Co-Director of the Academic Global Ophthalmology Fellowship, Wills Eye Hospital, Philadelphia

BRENTON D. FINKLEA, MD

- Director, Center for Academic Global Ophthalmology, Wills Eye Hospital, Philadelphia
- brenton.finklea@gmail.com

ZEB A. SYED, MD

- Co-Director of the Cornea Fellowship, Wills Eye Hospital, Philadelphia
- Assistant Professor of Ophthalmology, Sidney Kimmel Medical College, Thomas Jefferson University, Philadelphia
- zsyed@willseye.org

Learn more about the Wills Eye Fellowship in Academic Global Ophthalmology here: bit.ly/MEglobal2